

Munro Partners appoints Vice President, Institutional Investments in Canada to expand presence within the region

Melbourne-based Munro Partners (Munro) has appointed Brad Haughey to the newly created role of Vice President, Institutional Investments, based in Toronto, Canada.

Mr. Haughey joins Munro with more than 25 years of investment and distribution experience within funds management, specialising in global equities across a variety of institutional channels. Over his career, he has held senior client-facing roles at Black Creek Investment Management, Sprucegrove Investment Management, Greystone Managed Investments, and McLean Budden.

Ronald Calvert, CEO and Founding Partner of Munro, said the creation of this new role and the appointment of Mr. Haughey mark a significant milestone in the firm's international growth strategy.

"This appointment marks an important step in expanding Munro's North American presence. Brad's extensive experience, deep knowledge of the Canadian institutional market, and strong track record working with clients covering global equities position him perfectly for this role," Mr. Calvert said.

Munro's presence in North America has been growing since 2018, when it first entered the market through a sub-advisory relationship with its highly regarded Canadian asset management partner. Munro's Head of Institutional & Strategic Partnerships and Partner, Akilan Karuna, said growing the institutional offering is a natural evolution and the result of increased appetite for global growth equities from institutional investors in Canada.

"After nearly seven years in the Canadian market, this is the right time for Munro to broaden access for institutional investors and ensure more clients can benefit from our longstanding investment track record. As a highly aligned boutique investment manager, we are well positioned to serve the evolving needs of Canadian institutions, with Brad playing a pivotal role in deepening relationships across the institutional investor community," Mr. Karuna said.

Mr. Haughey said he is looking forward to building on Munro's strong foundation in Canada and helping take the firm's presence to the next level.

"I am excited to join Munro and help scale the reach of its world-class investment talent and thought leadership to a broader base of Canadian institutional investors. With a proven track record in managing global growth equities, my focus will be on strengthening partnerships with the institutional community and ensuring our investment ideas are delivered in a way that supports clients' long-term objectives."

Mr. Haughey's appointment is effective immediately.
